MARKETING POLICY & PROCEDURES HANDBOOK

[Company Name] — Internal Reference

Document ID: MKT-POLICY-v1 | Owned by: Marketing Lead | Last reviewed: [date]

Section 1: Campaigns & Promotions

§1.1 Campaign requests. New marketing campaigns must include the campaign objective, target audience, proposed channel, timeline, and responsible owner before execution begins.

§1.2 Campaign approval. Marketing campaigns must receive the required internal approvals before public release. Marketing staff must not publish unapproved campaign material.

§1.3 Promotional claims. Marketing materials must use claims that can be supported by approved company information. Unsupported performance, customer, or financial claims must not be published.

> Human Agent Notes — Section 1: Marketing L1 can explain the process but cannot waive required approvals.

Section 2: Brand & Content

§2.1 Brand assets. Official logos, templates, fonts, and approved brand assets must be obtained from the company brand repository. Employees should not create unofficial variants for external use.

§2.2 Public content. External-facing content must follow the applicable brand and approval process. Sensitive company information must not be included in marketing material without authorization.

§2.3 Content revisions. Requested changes to approved content must be reviewed when the change affects factual claims, legal language, pricing, or customer commitments.

> Human Agent Notes — Section 2: Do not approve public content simply because it is visually or grammatically correct; factual and approval requirements still apply.

Section 3: Events & Communications

§3.1 Event requests. Company-sponsored events require an event owner, budget information, expected audience, and required approvals before commitments are made.

§3.2 External communications. Public announcements must use approved messaging and follow the company's communication approval process.

§3.3 Customer-facing materials. Materials intended for customers must use current product and pricing information. Outdated material must be removed from active distribution channels.

Human Agent Notes — Section 3: When information is outdated or approval status is unclear, hold publication and escalate to the responsible marketing owner.
