This document is the grounding source for the front-door assistant's Finance answers. Bot replies should cite the relevant clause, e.g. `[Source: Finance Policy §1.2]`.

Section 1: Expenses & Reimbursements

§1.1 Expense submission. Employees must submit business expenses through the company expense portal with the receipt, transaction date, amount, business purpose, and applicable cost center. Expenses submitted without required documentation are returned to the employee for correction before review.

§1.2 Reimbursement deadline. Business expenses should be submitted within 30 calendar days of the transaction date. Claims submitted after this period require a documented reason for the delay and Finance review before reimbursement can proceed.

§1.3 Reimbursement processing. Complete and approved expense claims are processed within 5 business days after final approval. Processing time may increase when receipts, approvals, or cost-center information are missing.

§1.4 Personal expenses. Personal purchases are not reimbursable unless the expense policy explicitly identifies the item as an approved business expense. Employees must not classify personal expenses as business expenses to obtain reimbursement.

> Human Agent Notes — Section 1: Finance L1 may explain policy and return incomplete claims. Finance approval is required for exceptions. Never approve a personal expense by simply changing its category.

Section 2: Travel & Accommodation

§2.1 Business travel booking. Company travel must be booked through the approved corporate travel channel whenever available. Employees should select reasonably priced options that meet the approved travel requirements.

§2.2 Hotel reimbursement. Hotel expenses are reimbursable when the stay is required for approved business travel and supported by an itemized receipt. Personal upgrades and unrelated charges are not reimbursable.

§2.3 Travel advances. A travel advance may be requested before approved business travel when permitted by the Finance process. Any unused advance must be reconciled through the expense portal after the trip.

§2.4 Travel exceptions. Expenses outside standard travel limits require documented business justification and the appropriate approval before reimbursement. Finance does not independently waive approval requirements.

> Human Agent Notes — Section 2: Do not promise reimbursement before checking eligibility and approval status. Exceptions require the designated approval path.

Section 3: Payments & Invoices

§3.1 Vendor invoices. Vendor invoices must contain the vendor name, invoice number, invoice date, amount, applicable tax information, and purchase reference where required. Incomplete invoices are returned for correction.

§3.2 Invoice processing. Finance processes valid invoices after required business approval and verification. A submitted invoice does not automatically mean payment has been approved.

§3.3 Payment status. Employees requesting payment status must provide the invoice or purchase reference. Finance may provide status information only to users authorized to access the relevant financial record.

§3.4 Duplicate invoices. Suspected duplicate invoices must be held for verification rather than processed independently. Finance reviews the relevant invoice references before payment is released.

> Human Agent Notes — Section 3: Financial records are permission-controlled. Do not disclose vendor or payment information to unauthorized employees.

Section 4: HR/Finance Disambiguation

§4.1 Compensation versus reimbursement. Questions about salary, deductions, payslips, tax withholding, or employee compensation belong to HR/Payroll. Questions about business expenses, travel claims, invoices, and reimbursements belong to Finance.

§4.2 Employee benefits versus financial claims. Questions about eligibility for an employee benefit should be routed to HR when the benefit is part of the employee program. Questions about reimbursement of an approved business expense should be routed to Finance.

> Human Agent Notes — Section 4: Ask: “Are you asking about your employee compensation/benefit, or are you asking to have a business expense paid back?”
